little wonder, then, that drug testing has become part of the typical job application, with millions of wannabe workers tested each year. In one recent study of 573 Canadians, the status quo is seemingly accepted. In my opinion, it should not be a concern unless someone attempts to move their prescriptions to CVS.